

Wolff, Tobias, ed. Writers Harvest 3 (A Collection of New Fiction)

Some readers prefer shorter readings during the summer months. This collection of 15 short stories benefits Share Our Strengths, an anti-hunger program. Some of America's top writers have generously donated stories to this anthology. Mary Gordon writes about one woman's relationship with her blind neighbor; Barry Lopez describes one young man's attempt to redeem himself after one violent mistake; Joyce Carol Oates creates a haunting confrontation between Norma Jean (Marilyn Monroe) and a godlike photographer; John Barth meditates on the diminishment of life brought by age and change. These diverse stories have only one thing in common: all are gifts to benefit food banks and homeless shelters.

(Call No. FIC-WOL)